Allowable Subject Matter

4. Claims 1-2, 4-19, 21-23, 25-28, 30-45 and 59-65 are allowed.

The invention pertains to marketing methods that are not dependent upon the price of the product. Promoting the selection of an item by a predetermined type of consumer based upon consumer market data and consumer lifestyle data. The method includes the steps of gathering the consumer lifestyle and market data , determining one or more representative activities of the consumer based upon the lifestyle data, determining one or more representative uses of the item by the consumer during the representative activities based upon the market data, and creating demand for the item by the consumer based upon the representative uses of the item by the consumer during the activities through the selection of messaging, brands, packaging, or merchandising.

The prior art of record are:

Deaton (5,649,114) discloses storing customer identification data, such as home address geographic data, and consumer purchase history data, such as coffee brands. These disclosures correspond to the recited "consumer lifestyle and the consumer market data". The demographic and socioeconomic information disclosed in Deaton are forms of consumer lifestyle information.

Anderson (5,974,396) discloses targeting of specific consumers with marketing and other promotional literature is based on consumer buying habits, needs, demographics, etc.

According to Board of Appeal decision, the references alone or in combination fail to teach "representative activities" in addition to those "representative uses." The particular of the claims read as follows "determining one or more representative uses of said item by said predetermined type of consumer during said one or more representative activities based upon the consumer market data via the processor; and determining an association between said one or more representative uses of said item by said predetermined type of consumers during said one or more representative activities and the selection of messaging, brands, packaging, or merchandising.....creating demand for the item by said predetermined type of consumer based upon the determined association”, this patentable feature is present in independent claims 1 and 59.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled “Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance.”
